This Standard Work on the Chinese Language, constructed on the basis of Kanghi's Imperial Dictionary, contains all Chinese characters in practical use, and while alphabetically arranged according to the sounds of the oldest dialect of China, the Cantonese, it gives also the Mandarin pronunciation of all characters explained in the book, so that its usefulness is by no means confined to the Cantonose Dialect, but the work is a practically complete Thesaurus of the whole Written Language of China, ancient and modern, as used all over the Empire, whilst its introductory chapters serve the purposes of a philological guide to the student. A Supplement, arranged for being bound and used by itself, and containing a List of the Radicals, an Index, and a List of Surnames, will be published and sold separately. LANE, CRAWFORD & Co. Hougkong, January 15, 1883.

The China Itiail. HONGKONG, THURSDAY, JUNE 26, 1884.

A rew weeks ago we drew attention to the case of two Chinese subjects, in custody here, whose rendition was anurged that their offence was clearly of a lance. Strong diplomatic representations political nature, and that if they had | to the Peking authorities on the matter killed Chinese officers—this being the | might be made, especially if any case serious charge brought against themit was done in a fair attack upon a considerable body of native soldiers. guilty of any crime; that they merely happened to be in a house when a murder was committed;' and that they are the victims of a cruel, but powerful clan prosecution. To all this we have nothing to say, for the simple reason that the facts of the case are unknown to us. We should have attached greater weight to the representations made on behalf of the prisoners had there not been considerable differences between those which have been published in Shanghai und those, which have been published here. Our chief object is to deal with one or two little points affecting the question of Chinese extradition generally. An opponent of the rendition of these eleven men has argued at considerable length that an inferior or semi-civilized nation like China is not entitled to the international privileges and consideration extended to a civilized country. Debentures of The China Sugar Refining like say England. After quoting the opinions of eminent jurists on this point, he says: 'It is well known that the Government of China in its dealings with accused persons is not only far from civilised, either in its principles of justice or in its adjudication of crime, but that moreover it is both cruel and unjust in its treatment of those who are brought before its tribunals as accused persons. The Chinese Government cannot therefore be admitted to share in the privileges of our international criminal legislation, which have been adopted to guide our relations with Christian and civilized nations, until it has qualified itself for such participation by assimilating its penal and criminal procedure to the just and humane principles on which such international obligations are

These would be substantial arguments if an extradition Trenty between England and China were being negotiated. But by a Treaty now in existence we have recognised and provided for the right of China to obtain the rendition of Chinese offenders who have taken refuge in British territory. And we must confess we regard this delivery up 786 of persons who have fled from this Colony to the adjoining mainland to escape the punishment of the laws here as a most important and necessary arrangement. Crime in Hongkong would probably be greatly encouraged if offenders could cross to the other side of the harbour, and there be secure from our attempts to bring them to justice. Evil-doers would also escape their due punishment. Even in regard to foreigners, we regret we have not sufficient confidence in the commercial morality of the European community as a whole to view with satisfaction the turning of Chinese territory into an asylum and a place of escape for foreigners who have mins, later than at Hongkong; at the committed offences. Then again it would be equally undesirable for Hongkong to be a retuge for the malefactors of Southern China. Yet extradition must be reciprocal. If we do not give up offenders to the Chinese, the Chinese Government will not give them up to us. When offenders are handed over to the Chinese, there is no doubt they are dealt with after the cruel modes of the native criminal procedure, perhaps in spite of guarantees given for their treatment on more refined and civilized lines. Presuming that we can demand such guarantees, it seems to us we must trust to the good faith of the Chinese lied for by the Canton officials. We Government for their proper observoccurred where there was reason to suspect the guarantee had been abused This appears to be the only practical way of dealing with the subject. There has been some amount of argument regarding the evidence which ties. The charge against them is that should justify the rendition of an offenof murder. They stand on an entirely der to the Chinese. The Treaty says different ground from that of the two that on proof of his guilt' he shall be Chinese referred to, inasmuch as there delivered up. It has been urged that is nothing political about their offence, this wording implies that the guilt of if they have committed one. The his- the prisoner should be fully established tory of their case is remarkable. They before he is handed over. > FISCAL Statements of two nations. relative expense of maintaining the machinery of government in the United States and Great Britain is clearly shown by a comparison of the recent budget of the Chancellor with the report of the expenditures of the Government for the same period. In discussing this matter the New York Mail and Express suggests that it may he interesting to compare the British budget just presented in the Rouse of Commons by Chancellor Childers, with the statement of the United States Government for the last fiscal year. It should be borne in mind, however, that this country has nearly twenty millions more people than the United Kingdom, and the economy of Republican Government as compared with the most liberal of the monarchies will then be appreciated. The comparison is as follows :

Countries. | Income. | Espenses. | Debt Paid. United States 9398,000,000 5265,408,000 9134,000,000 Great Britain 448,000,000 435,000,000 42,000,000 It will be seen that John Bull received $38,000,000 and expended $169,592,000 more than Brother Jonathan during the fiscal year, and reduced his debt $91,000,000

Several thousands being called in by complainant and arrest- are annually vaccinated in the China-city at | BA ing the defendant. On the way to the Shanghai alone, and it is to be hoped that the next generation of English travellers ! may not see so large a proportion of those that throng these large towns hopelessly disfigured by small-pox as is the case to-day. This ready appreciation of vaccination by such a people as the Chinese is not, perhaps, devoid of a needed lesson to some at home. Small-pox, indeed, as was once the case in our own country, is probably the most destructive and terrible of the diseases of China, and occurs in a very virulent form, which is the scourge of the cities. Cholera, which is in all its symptoms, identical with the true Asiate epidemic disease, occurs only endemically (i.e. locally); in China, and, although very fatal, is never such a terror as small-box. Speaking of medical work in China, at Swatow the Presbyterian Medical Mission was visited with much interest. The following day I went to Dr. L---'s hopital and saw some of the out-patients with him. He was good enough also to send out into the streets for a number of lepers. Dr L-has a great many cases of all kinds amonget the Chinese, and the hospital can accommodate about 300 in-patients. He is most thorough and pains-taking in his work, and has many operations, especially in that very important branch of Eastern surgical practice which relates to diseases of the eye. It says a great deal for a man that he should devote himself to such a work in a climate where the duties of a conscientious

English doctor are very arduous and exhausting, in such isolation, and for the sake of a population at first sight so unpre-The masses of poor creatures in these no water in the stomach or lungs. A body would have to go by the evidence. The Sundays-saloous, barber shops and stores agine how strangely they would strike the can favorably. Each one attends his own sures, but is ever advancing to fresh conplace of worship, and those who do not go quests; that progress is the condition, as it is the sign, of Life; that, in truth, stillness is Death. Surely this is no slight lesson, hor the conversion to it of China's rulers an unimportant work. There is one figure worthily pre-eminent in the estimation of men, and which still dominates the horizon of the far East,-the figure of a man universally acknowleded to be the foremost statesman of his country. and the ablest leader of the people from whom he sprang. His Excellency, the Viceroy Li-Hung-Chang, is sometimes described as the Gladstone of China. He is at present sixty years of age, and holds probably the highest position of power and influence in the empire. I have had the privilege of conversing with one who has been on intimate rolations with this great man for several years, and who speaks of him not only as extremely able and farsighted, but also as thoroughly honest and disinterested. This gentleman assures me that Li is a most careful student of Western the way of progress. It is he who has spoken out on the opium question : it is ha who carried the telegraph to the capital:

In little things and in great, the Viceroy has strikingly illustrated his independence of the traditional prejudices under which so many even of the educated classes labour. Thus, for several years he has used coal-gas in his 'yamen' (or office) at Then-tsin, where he has translations of the English papers read to him. A generation ago as a soldier he took a leading part in suppressing the great Taiping rebellion. As a diplomatist he has been equally distinguished. After the murder of the French Tien-tsin, in 1870, it was mainly by the officets of Li-Hung-Chang that war was averted. He signed the famous Chefoo Convention of 1876, and since then has had the troublesome province of Kerea to deal with, which province he opened to Western made in order to avoid the simultaneous designs of Russia and Japan. Finally he has the Tongain difficulty in his hands, in which it is to be hoped that the tactics of the skilful diplomatist may be equally

THE CHINA REVIEW.

PUBLISHED BI-MONTHLY, . TENTH YEAR.

IIIHIS Review, which was intended to meet the wants of many students of Chinese caused by the discontinuance of "Notes and Queries, on China and Japan," has reached its Twelfth Volume. The Review discusses those topics which are uppermost in the minds of students of the "Far East" and about which every intelligent person connected with China or Japan is desirous of acquiring trustworthy information. It includes many interesting Notes and original Papers on the Arts, Sciences, Ethnology, Folklore, Geography, History, Literature, Mythology, Natural History, Antiquities, and Social Manners and Customs, etc., etc., of China, Japan, Mongolia, Tibet, and the Far East generally. Recently a new departure has been taken, and the Review new gives papers on Trade, Commerce, and Descriptive notes of Travel by well-known writers. It was thought that by extending the scope of the Keview in this direction, the Magazine would be made more generally

The Review department receives special attention, and endoavours are made to present a careful and concise record of Literature on China etc., and to give critiques embodying sketches of the Most recent works on such topics. Authors and Publishers are requested to forward works For further Particulars, regarding to "Editor, China Review, care of China

. Opinions of the Press. "All our learned societies should subscribe to this scholarly and enterprising $R\epsilon$ ciew."-Northern Christian Advocate (U.S.) "The China Review * * * has an excellent table of contents."-Celestial Empire. "The Publication always contains subjects of interest to sojourners in the Far East and the present issue will hold favourable if not advantageous comparison, with preceding numbers," - Celestial Empire. "This number contains several articles of interest and value."-North-China Herald. "The China Reviewfor September-October fully maintains the high standard of excellence which characterises that publiration, and altogether forms a very interesting and readable number. Meteorologists will find an interesting and valuable contribution by Dr. Fritsche, on "the Amount of Precipitation (Rain and Snow) of Poking," showing the results of observations made at the Imperial Russian Observatory at Peking, from 1841 to 1880. "Notes on the Datch Occupation of Formosa," by Mr. Geo. Phillips, contains some interesting information, although much of it is second-hand. The Notices of New Books include a most generous and appreciative review of "The Divine Classic of Nan-Hua," and the Notes and Queries are as usual very interesting."-North-China Daibi News. "A substantial and reliable Kevisu which all students of China and the Chinese would do well to patronise."—Chrysanthemum. "The November-December number of the China Review contains less variety than usual, but the few articles are very interesting. The opening paper by Mr Herbert A. Giles on "The New Testament in Chineso" treats of a question that must necessarily be of great importance in the eyes of all missionaries. . . Mr E. H. Parker's "Short Journeys in Szechuen" are continued, and a goodly instalment of Policies at current rates, payable either | these travels in the interior of China is here, in London, or at the principal Ports given. Mr F. H. Balfour contributes a paper of some length entitled "The Emperor Cheng, founder of the Chinese Empire," which will be read with genuine interest by students of Chinese history. A few short notices of New Books and a number of Notes and Queries, one of which "On Chinese Oaths in Western Borneo and Java" might appropriately have been placed under a separate heading, complete the number. "-H.K. Daily Press.

Trubner's Oriental Record contains the following notice of the China Review:-The present publication, judging by the number now before us, is intended to occupy a position, as regards China and the neighbouring countries, some what similar prepared to GRANT POLICIES on MARINE | to that which has been filled in India by the 5,000 RISKS to all parts of the World, at carrent Calcutta Review. The great degree of attention that has been bestowed of late years apon the investigation of Chinese literature, autiquities, and social developments, to say nothing of linguistic studies, has led to the accumulation of important stores of information, rendering some such channel of publicity as is now provided extremely desirable; and contributions of much interest may fairly be looked or from the members of the foreign consular services, the Chinese Risks on First Class Godowns at & Customs' corps, and the missionary body, among whom a high degree of Chinese scholarship is now assiduously cultivated, 938 and who are severally represented in the first number of the Review by papers highly creditable to their respective authors . . .
